Tonja Stokes

Field Director Indiana United Ways

During her career, Tonja has held a variety of roles in the nonprofit field, including that of volunteer, board member and committee chair, operations manager, funding officer, compliance officer, program development and evaluation, director of projects, programs, and departments, and has supported several membership growth/chapter development campaigns. She has also trained with the Grantsmanship Center, the Disney Institute's Professional Development & Leadership Training, and the American Society of Association Executives; her professional memberships include ATA and MATI (translation and interpretation) and PRSA. In her current role as Field Director, Tonja draws on her vast academic and experiential knowledge to consult and train nonprofit organizations and leaders throughout Indiana to realize their vision and fulfill their mission. She particularly enjoys comprehensive strategic planning and marketing/communications strategy building, and is English/Spanish bilingual.
